

ALBUQUERQUE CENTER

Annual Campus Safety and Security Report

October 1, 2013

INTRODUCTION

This report contains information regarding safety and security programs, policies, and procedures in place at New Mexico State University's Albuquerque Center campus (4501 Indian School Road NE - Suite 100, Albuquerque, NM 87110). It complies with the requirements established by 20 USC 1092, also known as the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act. Crime statistics from 2010 through 2012 required by this Act are included. The NMSU Police Department is the agency with primary responsibility for the collection of data for this report as of 2010, though it relies on the Albuquerque Police Department as well as other NMSU departments and agencies for assistance.

In addition to this report, there are similar reports available for other NMSU facilities, including the following:

- Alamogordo Branch Community College
- Carlsbad Branch Community College
- Dona Ana Community College - Chaparral Campus
- Dona Ana Community College - East Mesa Campus
- Dona Ana Community College - Gadsden Campus
- Dona Ana Community College - Workforce Center
- Grants Branch Community College
- Las Cruces and Dona Ana Community College Main Campus - combined report

Links to these other reports can be found at <http://www.nmsupolice.com/Annualreport.html>.

FIRE STATISTICS AND FIRE SAFETY REPORT

There is no residential housing at the NMSU Albuquerque Center, so there is not a Fire Safety Report for this location.

ABOUT THE CAMPUS

The NMSU Albuquerque Center is a satellite location for the Las Cruces campus with classrooms, faculty and staff offices, and meeting spaces. Located in the heart of Albuquerque about 220 miles from the Las Cruces campus, it serves as an undergraduate admissions and advising center for students in northern New Mexico, as well as a location where several certificate and degree programs can be completed without the need to travel to southern New Mexico. A number of services are also available at this site, including counseling services.

PUBLIC SAFETY AGENCIES

The primary responsibility for emergency response to the Albuquerque Center rests with the City of Albuquerque Police and Fire Departments. For any emergency, dial 911. There are no on-site security staff at this location.

The NMSU Police Department also has jurisdiction at this location, but does not have officers stationed in Albuquerque. Officers from the Las Cruces campus assist with providing guidance, training, and major crime investigation at the Albuquerque Center, as needed. The NMSU Police Department command staff regularly network with leadership from the Albuquerque Police Department, the Bernalillo County Sheriff's Department, the Albuquerque office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and other law enforcement agencies in the area.

Other NMSU Las Cruces departments involved in safety may also provide consulting services to Albuquerque Center faculty, staff, and students upon request. This includes conducting safety drills, planning and conducting exercises, and developing emergency response plans.

SAFETY – EVERYONE'S BUSINESS

A campus community relies on a peaceful, safe, and secure environment. Preserving this environment is a responsibility everyone on campus shares. Members of the community are expected to be aware of policies and procedures of the university and to promptly report any crime or suspicious activity.

Everyone needs to also be conscious of personal safety. Nobody can be kept safe if they intentionally choose to engage in risky activity. Be aware of your surroundings and avoid suspicious or dangerous situations whenever possible. You should also follow common safety practices that include locking doors and windows, using seatbelts, and avoiding the over-consumption of alcohol.

SECURITY OF BUILDINGS AND FACILITIES

The Albuquerque Center is relatively safe, with very little crime reported. However, that does not mean it will always remain crime free. Burglary, automobile burglary, and thefts have taken place at this location, and students and employees are encouraged to always lock up valuables and not leave them unattended, as this contributes to thefts.

The buildings of the Albuquerque Center are only open to the public during posted hours. The facility is considered closed when the doors are locked.

If you notice a potential safety problem related to the Albuquerque Center (including door or window locks not working, lights needing to be replaced, vegetation that needs to be cut or cleared to provide clear sight lines, trip/fall hazards, etc.), please call the Albuquerque Center main office at (505) 830-2856 or (575) 646-0301.

EMERGENCY NOTICES, TIMELY WARNINGS, AND ALERTS

When there are major incidents or emergencies that affect a large number of people and that present an immediate threat to health or safety, NMSU will issue advisories, alerts, or warnings as appropriate and as long as doing so will not impede the public safety response or further endanger lives. These may be issued by NMSU staff on site through local alarms, or they may be issued by the NMSU Police Department Emergency Dispatcher in Las Cruces. These will usually involve the following steps:

Receipt of Call: A call from one of the public safety agencies in Albuquerque or from one of the faculty or staff members of the Albuquerque Center to the NMSU Police Department's Emergency Dispatch Center may trigger an emergency alert.

Confirmation of Significant Emergency or Dangerous Situation: Based on the information received from caller, the Emergency Dispatcher will take steps to confirm an emergency or dangerous situation is taking place. If the decision is made that such a condition exists, the Incident Commander may initiate emergency notifications of the appropriate segment(s) of the campus in danger.

Determination of Affected Location: Due to the small geographic size of the Albuquerque Center, emergency warnings will generally include all facilities and all individuals who have selected the Albuquerque Center when registering with the NMSU Emergency Notification System (when the system is used).

Determination of Content of Notification and Activation: The content of the emergency notification will depend on the method(s) of notification selected. For example, if the decision is made that activation of a fire alarm is the most appropriate way to warn occupants of a building of a fire, the "content" of the immediate message will be limited to the audible and visual alarm annunciators in the building. If the decision is made to send a text message, the content will usually involve an indication there is an emergency (usually the word "emergency"), the location of the emergency (often a building name), the nature of the emergency (e.g., "fire"), and the immediate steps the recipient should take (such as "avoid area"). Other methods of notification may involve use of public address systems, face-to-face contact, outdoor warning sirens, on-vehicle sirens, e-mails, etc. The determination of what on-scene notification methods will be used is determined by the on-scene Incident Commander of the public safety agency(ies) responding.

The following is a description of the main types of "whole campus" notifications sent to the public regarding public safety:

WHAT: This is a brief description of what is taking place. For example, it may indicate there is a tornado warning, a fire, a bomb threat, or a person shooting. If the message is not an emergency (e.g., a test message), it will be indicated here.

WHERE: This provides information about where the emergency is taking place. It will be as specific as the particular situation allows, but should always include which campus(es) is being affected.

ACTION: This is where recipients will find specific guidance on what to do as a result of the emergency (e.g., be on the lookout, shelter in place, evacuate, etc.). In order to make the system work as fast as possible, these messages are necessarily kept very brief, and additional information will usually be made available on the NMSU website homepage. (NOTE: On-scene direction from public safety personnel, media releases, update e-mails, and other forms of communication may also be used as appropriate. Follow the most current and specific guidance provided.)

MORE INFO: This section will explain where to go to get more detailed information regarding the emergency. This will usually include the university's website (www.nmsu.edu), but depending on the nature of the incident, other sources may be also be provided.

NMSU strives to issue Warnings without delay, taking into account the safety of the community. The final decision on whether to issue one of the above notices, and the information contained therein, rests with the NMSU Chief of Police. The Chief (or his designee) may make the decision not to issue a notice if the situation is deemed not to warrant one, or if doing so might compromise efforts to assist victims or might otherwise hamper the ability of public safety personnel to respond to and contain the incident (as determined/requested by the on-scene emergency response agency).

EMERGENCY EXERCISES AND DRILLS

NMSU conducts and/or coordinates a variety of exercises, drills, and training related to public safety and emergency management. These may include tests of fire alarms, evacuations, active shooter drills, tabletop exercises, and full scale exercises. These vary throughout the year based on training and exercise priorities established by the university administration and relevant department heads. Students and employees are involved in some, but not all of these activities.

Each Fall semester, NMSU conducts a number of drills that may be announced or unannounced for a given facility. This gives students and employees an opportunity to hear and respond to alarms in the same manner they might in the event of an actual emergency.

In addition to the exercises and drills, NMSU also tests the Emergency Notification System at least once each year near the beginning of the Fall semester. This is an announced test, with messages being sent via voice, text, and e-mail. This annual test provides students and employees the opportunity to confirm they are receiving messages in the manner expected. It also provides university administrators a chance to verify the system is working appropriately.

EMERGENCY ACTIONS

If you are involved in a dangerous or life-threatening emergency, take the following steps immediately:

- Get to a safe place as quickly as possible. Generally, the further you can get away from the scene, the safer you will likely be.
- Report the emergency by calling 911. Say, "This is an EMERGENCY", give your LOCATION, and briefly tell WHAT is happening.

- Notify others of the danger so they can also stay away.
- Monitor the situation to see if it gets worse or if circumstances (like wind direction) change. Notify the emergency services dispatcher (911 operator) of the changes.

All students and employees are also encouraged to prepare in advance for emergencies, whether they are from natural disasters (such as floods, tornados, earthquakes, extreme heat, lightning, disease outbreak, etc.) or manmade incidents (including traffic crashes, hazardous chemical releases, downed electrical lines, criminal activity, terrorism, arson, etc.). The NMSU Police Department has prepared a "Quick Flip Guide to Emergencies" that can be downloaded from the internet (www.nmsupolice.com) and assembled. It is a good starting point for both incident specific guidelines, as well as general guidelines. Additional information is also available through the Environmental Health and Safety Office website at <http://www.nmsu.edu/~safety/>. Under the "Emergency Management" tab on the left is a wealth of information, including the NMSU All Hazards Emergency Operations Plan, communicable disease outbreak guidelines, laboratory safety, and links to a number of other agencies.

NMSU conducts fire drills in randomly selected buildings each fall semester. However, students and employees should not rely on these being the only times they think about emergency evacuations. Anytime a person enters a building, they should also look to see what other avenues of emergency escape exist, whether through additional doors, designated fire exits, or even windows. Students and employees should also know where the designated escape routes and exits are in those buildings they live and/or work in, as well as any potential specific challenges (such as stairs might present for a person in a wheelchair). Some buildings may have designated "safe haven" areas where a person may call for assistance and wait for fire personnel. However, these areas are not a guarantee, and the person should continually evaluate the conditions and decide whether or not it is still safe to remain in that area.

MISSING PERSON REPORTS

There is no residential housing at the Albuquerque Center, so the likelihood of a missing person report being filed is greatly reduced. However, if you have reason to believe a person may be missing from the Albuquerque Center, you should immediately call the Albuquerque Police Department. You do not need to wait 24 hours before calling. You may also call the NMSU Police Department, who will then work with the Albuquerque Police Department and other law enforcement agencies as necessary.

NMSU's attempts to locate the person will include contacting the Albuquerque Police Department, notifying the missing person's designated contact(s), notifying parents or guardians if the missing person is less than 18 years of age, contacting known family members and friends, and posting of bulletins and news releases. In addition, the NMSU Police Department will notify appropriate university officials that a person is missing. The university will also notify other law enforcement if a student has been missing within 24 hours of the report.

When students enroll at NMSU, they are asked to provide Emergency Contact Information, and this information is used by the NMSU Police Department in contacting family and/or friends. One or more of these people may be designated as a person to contact solely for purposes of trying to find a student should they be missing. The same person, or others, may also be designated for contact in other emergencies involving the student. All students are strongly encouraged to designate and provide the names and contact information of the people they would like contacted under these circumstances. This may be done at the website <http://emergency.nmsu.edu>. The information entered at this site is kept confidential and only used by the NMSU Police Department when needed, and only shared with other law enforcement during actual investigations. For any student who is a minor (under the age of 18) and has not been emancipated by a court, police officials are required to notify his/her parent(s) or guardian(s), in addition to any emergency contacts listed by the student. These contacts will be made within 24 hours in order to facilitate finding the missing student.

Any university employee who, through the course of their employment, is informed that a person is missing from the Albuquerque Center is required to immediately notify the Albuquerque Police Department or the NMSU Police Department and not wait 24 hours. If there is information an abduction has just taken place, the employee should call 911. Otherwise, the person should call the nonemergency numbers at the end of this report and provide the information to the emergency services dispatcher. A police officer will then be dispatched to meet and gather additional information.

SAFETY PROGRAMS

Due to the nature of the Albuquerque Center, crime prevention program offerings are very limited. However, students are always welcome to participate in programs offered at the Las Cruces campus. In addition, safety and self defense programs may be offered at the Albuquerque Center, including:

- Personal Self Defense and Fight Like A Girl: learn and practice techniques that can help stop an attack in these programs
- Pepper Spray: learn to use pepper sprays for self defense
- Active Shooter Response: learn what to do during an active shooter/killer incident
- Rape Awareness & Prevention: learn about stranger, date, and acquaintance rape, and some ways to avoid situations common to rapes
- Alcohol & Drug Awareness: learn the effects of alcohol and drugs on the body, and the dangers they can pose
- Dealing with Difficult People and Violence in the Workplace: learn about the causes of workplace violence and how to reduce its likelihood Programs may be requested by any student organization or employee by contacting the NMSU Police Department, who will work to schedule delivery of the program at a mutually agreed time/date. Courses are tailored for each audience, and range in length from 15 minutes to 8 hours. Further information, including a list of currently scheduled courses, how to request a course, descriptions of the courses, or discussion of specific needs is available by contacting the NMSU Police Department at (575) 646-3311. Additional information regarding safety can also be found at www.nmsupolice.com and safety.nmsu.edu.

People interested in the activities of the NMSU Police Department can find regular news reports on local radio and television stations, as well as articles in the local newspapers. The Round Up student newspaper also publishes stories on recent police reports taken by the NMSU Police Department.

TIPS TO PREVENT CRIME

The following are some things each person can do to reduce chances of becoming a victim of a crime:

- Mark or engrave all valuables (including textbooks), and keep a record of these in a safe place. Include their make, model, and serial numbers whenever possible.
- Lock the doors and windows to your vehicle every time you leave. Do not leave valuables where they can be easily seen by someone passing by, even if it is just for a few minutes.
- Always be aware of your surroundings and of any strangers near you. If someone is acting suspiciously, move away toward large groups and well lit areas.
- Don't leave valuables unattended in unlocked study areas, offices, or classrooms.
- Alcohol and drug use can reduce your ability to recognize a dangerous situation and your ability to defend yourself. If you are going to drink alcohol, do it legally, responsibly, in a safe place, and with people you can trust.

In addition to the tips above, additional information can be found on the NMSU Police Department website (www.nmsupolice.com), or by contacting the Crime Prevention Office at 646-3311.

IF YOU ARE THE VICTIM OF A CRIME . . .

If you are the victim of a crime while at NMSU, or experience a fire or medical emergency, report it immediately by calling 911. (For nonemergencies, use the appropriate phone number from the list at the end of this report). When you call, give your name, the location you are calling from, a brief description of what occurred, and whether the person who committed the crime is still in the area. Prompt reporting and specific information will increase the chances of solving your case. A police officer may be dispatched to meet with you and obtain all of the necessary information. If evidence from the crime is still intact, please do not move or destroy it. This is especially important in sexual assault cases. Showering, changing clothes, or grooming can destroy vital evidence.

Many students worry about reporting crimes to the police because they do not want to testify in a trial. Victims are nevertheless encouraged to at least contact the police so they can be made aware of other services (counseling services, medical treatment, etc.) that might lessen the trauma of the incident. If the victim does not wish to pursue criminal charges, local prosecutors can provide the victim an opportunity to decline prosecution.

Students who are victims of crimes may also pursue recourse through the NMSU Student Judicial System. While this is not a substitute for the criminal justice system, it affords students the opportunity to have their side heard in a less formal environment. If an accused student is found to have violated the Student Code of Conduct (including by engaging in forcible or non-forcible sex offenses), he or she may be subject to disciplinary action. The level of disciplinary action administered depends on the specific circumstances of the case, but can range from warnings and attendance at mandatory programs up to and including expulsion from NMSU.

Both the victim and accused will be afforded the same opportunities within the student judicial process, including the ability to have others present during disciplinary proceedings, and both shall be informed (upon written request) of the outcome of any campus disciplinary proceedings alleging crimes of violence. In cases of alleged sex offenses, both the accuser and the accused shall be informed of the outcome and any sanctions imposed. Students interested in this course of action may call the Student Judicial Services Office at (575) 646-1722, the office responsible for administrative sanctions against students. As always, students may also contact the NMSU Police Department for assistance and guidance.

Victims of violent crimes (including sex offenses) may also request changes in academic arrangements. Decisions on what changes may be made will be determined on a case-by-case basis by the appropriate university officials. Students may contact the Dean of Students or the NMSU Police Department to inquire about accommodations.

Any NMSU officials who are approached by a person who has been the victim of a sexual assault or other crime at the Albuquerque Center are required to assist the person in notifying police.

SEXUAL ASSAULT

The issue of sexual assault and other sexual misconduct is at the forefront in universities nationwide. NMSU specifically prohibits sexual misconduct and will assist victims in seeking counseling (available through the Counseling Center or several off-campus organizations), obtaining medical treatment (available through local hospitals and clinics), making academic changes, and in any other way possible, including criminal prosecution through the District Attorney's Office (if the victim so desires). Students, faculty and staff, and visitors are reminded that they can contact the NMSU Police Department for assistance at any time, and do not have to file an official police report in order to be helped.

A registry of convicted sex offenders is maintained by the State of New Mexico, and is available on-line at <http://www.nmsexoffender.dps.state.nm.us>. There are also additional listings available at some of the law enforcement agency websites listed at the end of this report.

In addition to other legal requirements, any convicted sex offender who is a student or employee of NMSU is required to register with the NMSU Police Department, as well as make notification to either the Registrar's Office (if a student) or the department head of their employing department (if an employee), or both (if both a student and an employee). This requirement exists regardless of campus attended, even if the student takes all classes via distance education.

DRUGS AND ALCOHOL

Use of alcohol is a concern with many high school and college students. While a large percentage of students at the Albuquerque Center are older than 21, there are still a large percentage of students and visitors below 21 years of age (the minimum age for consumption of alcohol in New Mexico). Alcohol is strictly prohibited for those below 21, and abuse of alcohol by anyone (to include use in unauthorized areas) is prohibited. Anyone caught selling or giving alcohol to a minor is guilty of a 4th degree felony in New Mexico. NMSU supports enforcement of alcohol and drug laws by all law enforcement agencies with jurisdiction. The Student Judicial Affairs Office also pursues administrative sanctions against those who violate university policies and state laws, with penalties ranging from mandatory education programs up to and including expulsion from NMSU.

In addition to alcohol, illegal drug abuse (to include prescription drug abuse) is a concern on college campuses. Possession, sale, or use of any prohibited substance may result in criminal charges and administrative sanctions, up to and including expulsion from NMSU. Violations of federal and state controlled substance laws are investigated by a number of law enforcement agencies, including those listed at the end of this report.

For those wanting to know more about the effects of alcohol and drugs, as well as issues like sexual assault, the WAVE (Wellness, Alcohol, and Violence Education) peer educator program can offer assistance. Counseling services are also available for those with substance abuse problems. Also, there are several academic courses related to drugs and alcohol offered each semester for those wanting to gain in-depth knowledge while also earning college credits. These courses can also be a great start for those wanting to pursue careers helping others with substance abuse problems.

OTHER SERVICES AVAILABLE

New Mexico State University offers counseling services free of charge to students through the NMSU Counseling Center. The NMSU Counseling Center staff is comprised of well-trained professionals and can help students with a wide range of problems. Students interested should call the NMSU Counseling Center at (575) 646-2731.

Students seeking counseling services off campus may obtain a list of the services available and their phone numbers by looking in the local phone book or online. There are also a number of crisis lines that operate 24 hours each day in the Albuquerque area that can provide guidance on services. A number of these are listed on the last page of this report.

For education about sexual assault and misconduct, policy development, and victims' assistance issues, NMSU has given responsibilities to several departments and offices. Students with concerns or needing specific information are encouraged to contact the Dean of Students or the NMSU Police Department. NMSU works specifically toward the goal of reducing the incidence of sexual crimes and providing better services for those victimized. Special assistance for victims in changing academic arrangements (and living arrangement for student living at the Las Cruces campus) is available through the Dean of Students.

CRIME STATISTICS

The NMSU Board of Regents, the NMSU administration, and the NMSU Police Department strongly discourage any conduct that is illegal or that violates the rights of another individual. This specifically includes laws concerning possession, use, and sale of alcohol and illegal drugs. NMSU may take both administrative (student judicial and/or personnel) and criminal action against individuals and organizations found to be violating federal, state or university laws or policies regarding alcohol or drugs. Various drug or alcohol abuse education programs are sponsored by NMSU's Police Department, the Vice Provost for Student Affairs Office, and the Human Resources Office. The NMSU Police Department will make every effort to assist victims of crimes and other law enforcement agencies in prosecuting those responsible. The complete NMSU policies on alcohol use, drug use, prohibited activities, restrictive access, and crime can also be found at http://www.nmsu.edu/~vpsa/DRPAP/related_policies.pdf.

The following are the Clery statistics compiled for the past three years at 4501 Indian School Road NE in Albuquerque, as reported by the Albuquerque Police Department:

Crime Reports

During the past three years, the following crimes were recorded by the NMSU Police Department:

Off-campus fraternities	0	0	0

NOTE: There are no residential facilities at the Albuquerque Center, and no fraternities or sororities. However, the Clery Act still requires reporting in these areas, hence their inclusion above.

*Hate Crimes include an element of "hate" in any of the following crime categories: murder and non-negligent manslaughter, forcible sex offenses, non-forcible sex offenses, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, motor vehicle theft, arson, larceny/theft, simple assault, intimidation, and destruction/vandalism of property.

Arrests of Special Interest

The following is a breakdown of arrests that took place on the university in categories of special interest to the public, as defined in the Clery Act. These arrests do not include arrests by federal agents that are not known to the NMSU Police Department, particularly in the area of drug offenses.

	2009	2010	2011

Off-campus fraternities	0	0	0
Off-campus public property	0	0	0

* Includes violations of the Controlled Substances Act.

 Reflects updated numbers from previous reports due to changes in counting methodology and/or definitions.

Disciplinary Referrals & Sanctions:

The following is a breakdown of disciplinary referrals (student and employee) and sanctions taken administratively by the university. These have been provided by the Office of Student Judicial Services and by the Human Resources Department. As the administrative action is taken completely separate from the criminal justice system, these may duplicate arrests listed above. In addition, they may include violations of university policies that do not necessarily violate laws.

	2009	2010	2011
Alcohol Violations
Campus disciplinary referrals	0	0	0
Campus disciplinary sanctions	0	0	0

POLICE REPORTS FILED

The Albuquerque Police Department has the following reports on file for the address of the Albuquerque Center (starting in August 2009 when the Center opened at this site):

2010

6/24/2010	8:01 am	Traffic crash - no injuries	Case #AP100059895
8/25/2010	10:40 am	Family Dispute	Case #AP100082201

2011

No reports listed.

2012

2/7/2012	7:49 am	Commercial Burglary	Case #AP12030167
11/28/12	9:00 am	Auto Theft	Case #AP123330394

CRIME BLOTTER AND INCIDENT REPORTS

As there are no security or NMSU police personnel at the Albuquerque Center, there are no known security logs or police reports for this site other than the reports listed above that were filed with the Albuquerque Police Department. Similarly, there is no crime blotter maintained by NMSU for this site.

OFF-CAMPUS CRIME

There are no NMSU-affiliated student organizations at the Albuquerque Center, and therefore there is no off-campus crime associated with such.

WE NEED YOUR HELP – REPORT CRIME!

Please help us in deterring crime on our campus by promptly calling police to report suspicious activity or crimes. In accordance with state law, police departments cannot generally accept anonymous reports, and must disclose certain information to prosecutors and defense counsel. However, it will take steps in sensitive cases to keep personal information confidential to the extent possible. This includes cases of sexual assault, as well as cases where there is a concern of possible retaliation. The NMSU Police Department also encourages 3rd party reports from non-NMSU counselors, pastors, and other mental health practitioners regarding the Albuquerque Center. To make a 3rd party report, call (575) 646-3311 and ask to speak with the supervisor on duty.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR POLICY MONITORING AND ENFORCEMENT

The university has assigned responsibility for monitoring the above policies to the NMSU Police Department. If violations of policy are found to have occurred, the violations are referred to the President's Chief of Staff for enforcement.
